SPEAKER BIO

Jordan “Cancer” Scott
Cyber Solutions Architect, Parsons |
Owner, Code Talkers Engineering

Presidential Candidate Jordan "Cancer" Scott recently started doing stand-up comedy. He has a M.S. in Computer Engineering and was an Infantry Officer in the Army years ago. He also did Electronic Warfare for the Army while deployed to Afghanistan and actually has a military operation named after him. He earned his CISSP after a month of self-study because cyber folks frustratingly kept telling him no when he requested system changes. He was the "Defensive Winner" for the Project Ares ‘Game of Titans’ Cyber Challenge, which competed live in an eSports Arena in Vegas. He is the local Chapter President of the Association of Old Crows, on the Board of Directors for the FBI's Infragard Denver Region, and is currently running for President of the United States. There's definitely something wrong with his brain, but he seems to be fun and good at this stuff so here we go.
